

LOWDEN WILL USE CAUTION IN NAMING EXEMPTION BOARDS

GOVERNOR TELLS G. A. R. AT BLOOMINGTON ONLY BEST MEN AVAILABLE WILL BE USED TO WEED OUT ARMY INELIGIBLES.

Bloomington, Ill., June 8.—Governor Lowden speaking yesterday afternoon before the Illinois department of the Grand Army of the Republic, in annual encampment here, explained the method of naming exemption boards and declared he would not hesitate to disregard suggestions of assemblymen if he believed the men suggested to him for places on the boards were not the very best in their several communities.

The governor urged united action of all classes and divisions of society in the prosecution of the war, and he said if the exemption boards were to accomplish their purpose they must have the confidence of all the people.

Under the federal plan naming of the boards is left to the governors of the states, and Governor Lowden has sought the assistance of legislators, who, he said, were acquainted with the best men in their several communities. Senators and representatives have until Monday in which to submit their lists.

Must Be Loyal Men.

"It is not only necessary to have competent and loyal men, but it is equally necessary to have men who are known to the public to be such," declared the governor. "I believe the members of the legislature, in most instances at least, are actuated by high and patriotic motives in selecting these names for consideration. I believe that they will rise to the emergency. If, however, any fall in recommending to me the best men within their several districts, I shall not hesitate to replace their names with other and better men in my recommendations to the President."

"It is going to mean much to the internal quiet of our state and to the satisfaction of our people to constitute these boards in such a way that our people, as a whole, will have full confidence in the fairness and impartiality of the administration of the selective draft. Every other consideration must yield to this."

"The people of the state can now render a great service by assisting the members of the general assembly in the selection of the two men in the several counties and districts who measure up best to the requirements above set forth."

"The imperative need of the hour is to present a solid front to the enemy. Labor and capital must cooperate. All divisions of society, without reference to politics or religion or class differences, must unite if we are to win this war. Let us close up the ranks and show a united America to all the world."

WAR GIVES MEN'S JOBS TO AMERICAN GIRLS

These young women save their present work to the war, which has taken men for the fighting forces and for the making of munitions and other war supplies. They are seen here busy engaged in the filling of medicine bottles in a New Jersey factory. For convenience, safety and comfort they have adopted the divided lower garments which their European sisters wear who are engaged in war work. Students of economic conditions predict that the great war will cause permanent changes in the economic and industrial position of women in America and Europe.

FAVORS DAYLIGHT SAVING.

President, However, in Doubt as to Necessary Legislation.

Washington.—President Wilson expressed his approval of the daylight saving plan to a delegation headed by Representative Borah of Missouri and Marcus Marks of New York, president of the National Daylight Saving association.

The president told them the only question in his mind about legislation to carry it into operation was whether congress leaders would look upon it as war legislation, to which they have tacitly agreed to limit the session's activities. The subject will be taken up with the leaders.

Hard on Prisoners.

The fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul at Petrograd has been a place of mysteries as impenetrable as those of the Bastille. Here were sent political prisoners, concerning whose fate nothing, as a rule, was ever divulged. Some, no doubt, lingered in this living tomb for years, their existence being made more terrible by hearing every quarter of an hour the prison clock repeat a tedious, irritating air, always the same—a psalm in praise of the czar.—London Chronicle.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Quinn's Experience Ought to Help You Over the Critical Period.

Lowell, Mass.—"For the last three years I have been troubled with the change of life and the bad feelings common at that time. I was in a very nervous condition, with headaches and pain a good deal of the time so I was unfit to do my work. A friend asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and it has helped me in every way. I am not nearly so nervous, no headache or pain. I must say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best remedy any sick woman can take."

LaSalle County Better Farming Department

"AS OTHERS SEE IT."

I had just finished going over Mr. Blank's account book with him and had cranked up ready to leave when a couple of neighbors drove in to ask the use of the forge to do a little repair work. After "The One" had called out a cheery "Good morning," "The other" broke forth with, "Say, you farmer's man, what's all this talk about a trip to some school somewhere? People have been talking about that thing ever since they got something they called a bulletin or something of that kind."

"Yes," I replied, "We did make mention of that in our Monthly Bulletin. We are going on a special train Friday, June 15, to the State University at Urbana to see what the Agricultural Experiment Station is doing for us farmers, and—"

"By jing, neighbor," said the One to the Other, "You want to pile in and go along. Last spring I'd just about made up my mind that it was time for us all to have a day off when I heard of the excursion to the university. I'd read a lot about the work there, so I decided to go along and see for once how some of that was done. Everybody else was going so we just took the whole family, lunch basket and all, and say, we just forgot everything about how hard we'd been working when we got to talking with old friends and neighbors. And you know I supposed that when we got there we'd just get off and look around for about an hour and then come back home, but by jing, we couldn't have seen it all if we'd stayed a week. You just bet I'm going this year to see some more of it, and to see some of those they had going last year—to see how they are coming out, you know. Why, they've actually got crops growing, pigs squealing, and cows giving milk, and little lambs frisking about—there just ain't no use talking."

"That's the best of the whole business," was the answer. "It ain't cost us one bloomin' cent more than last year. I ain't a-telling whether it really didn't cost any more or whether the woman made the hens lay more this year, because I don't know. But by jing, I know I ain't raised any more than I did last year, anyhow."

"Say, Mr. Farmer's Man," said The Other, "when's the train again, what's it cost, when's it a-comin' back, and so forth?"

"The train leaves Mendota about 6 a. m.," I replied, "and makes stops at all stations on the I. C. in this county and at Mionk. The fare is $2.48 each way from LaSalle. We return the same day."

"Uh, be hanged if we don't all go," he ejaculated. "Say, neighbor—"

And just as I turned from the yard into the road, I saw The Other with a foot on a running board and a hand on a door shaking a finger at The One in spirited conversation—about the excursion, I suppose.

A Sincere Compliment.

I remember as a boy hearing the late Rev. Sam P. Jones tell my father or what he considered to be the most sincere compliment he ever received, says a writer in the Dallas Pitchfork. "I was holding a meeting in the city of Louisville," Rev. Sam Jones related, "and spending the nights with an old Methodist colonel who owned a fine country home. During my first evening at the colonel's home the old colored yard man was instructed to bring out one of the colonel's finest saddle horses for my review. The aged negro did as he was instructed and led before me a magnificent animal. The horse was a deep bay stallion, and he walked with blab, swaggering steps. I said to the old negro, 'What makes him step so proudly?' And he answered without hesitation: 'Dat boss has got sense, Brudder Jones. He knows who's lookin' at 'im.'"

Sam Jones said that was the sincerest compliment he ever received.
